The injection was given with a 12-foot syringe tipped with a four-inch needle, with the aid of a dart rifle

So far the whale has eaten a few small fish but officials commented, "this is like a man nibbling on a peanut." Still scientists are not worried as a killer whale will often eat only once a week.

Meanwhile, others have expressed interest in captur-

OTHERS MAY HUNT

After it was made known that Charles White, operator of the Gardens, had no hope of purchasing the captive whale, two other groups said they were considering another capture with the use of tranquilizers.

But Mr. White is not ready to give up yet. Today he offered to build an undersea gardens in Vancouver if Dr. Newman would reconsider selling the whale.

And while all this is taking place, two petitions to have the whale released remained unsigned this morning in two Victoria establishments.

Time To Go All the Way

the Senate banking committee Wednesday, Premier Bennett argued well and effectively for a new chartered bank with headquarters in British Columbia and able to take a financial part in the economic development of the province without reference to controlling interests thousands of miles away.

At the same time he completely destroyed any argument in favor of direct government participation as a shareholder in a private bank. In fact, he virtually surrendered to critics who have insisted that a bank dominated by a government share-holder could not help but become a political instrument.

Mr. Bennett's surrender went to the point where he agreed that government participation in the proposed bank would be limited to 10 per cent of the shares rather than the 25 per cent authorized by the provincial legislature which would have given effective control. He went even further and admitted he would be willing to accept "maybe even less than five per cent." But he insisted that the government would have to be allowed to buy

It is difficult to understand this insistence on the government being a shareholder to any degree in an enterprise of this kind. If a new chartered bank is as desirable for British Columbia as the premier claims, and is as desired by the claims, and is as desired by the tee, toward making the proposed people of the province as ardently as the 12,505-name petition shown business institution. Now he should by Mr. Bennett attests, then there should be no need for the government to put capital into it. IN HIS APPEARANCE BEFORE interest in any bank. It stands to the Senate banking committee reason that as a shareholder, and beneficiary of any profits that may be paid on the shares, the govern-ment would feel an obligation to do all its business with the one firm. Other banks might offer superior services to those offered by the firm in which the government has a share—services by which the public would benefit through government saving—but they would have no chance to compete for the business.

At the same time, as we have pointed out before, any bank in which a government is both the largest depositor and a shareholder, would be under unusual pressures to give that government debt accommodation far beyond the point of prudence and quite out of keeping with responsible banking practice. And this, it is quite apparent, is one of the main reasons for Mr. Bennett's enthusiasm for his proposed Bank of British Columbia, as anyone who recalls his government's difficulties with the established banks a few years ago will realize.

No one will quarrel with the establishment of new chartered banks for the expansion of the business and industry of British Columbia. But there would be serious doubts as to the wisdom of creating a bank which would be obliged to give any government an unlimited line of credit.

Mr. Bennett has gone a long way, in his brief to the banking commitgo all the way and offer an acceptable pledge that the government would not take part in the bank in any way past the period of initial

The Silk Road

THE ancient Silk Road between Huitza and Sinkiang, sealed off since 1959, is to be reopened, Pakistan and China have agreed.

Trade caravans along this historical route vaguely associated with Marco Polo's travels, and the only land link be-tween Chinese Sinkiang and Pakistan, may restart their slow and risky way within the next few weeks.

Its reopening, coupled with the recently-established air link, dramatizes Pakistan's growing rapport with China. It also coin-cides with the near-completion of Pakis-tan's first all-weather and motorable link with its northernmost outposts of Gilgit and Hunza, bordering China. This road has been built by Pakistani army engineers and troops, at a cost of $5 million, vastly easing travel and transport problems. Incoming Chinese goods will still have to hazard the rigors of the Pamir and the allegers on the track which winds and the glaciers on the track which connects Sinkiang with Hunza.

Before 1959 Chinese brick tea, carpets, pottery and sheepskin rugs were to be found plentifully in Gilgit and Hunza. Return exports from Pakistan used to be leather and salt. The route was closed by Pakistan in 1959, after Chinese incursions into Ladakh, At that time there were reports of Chinese "pressure" on Hunza.

Recently, however, relationships be-tween Pakistan and China have blossomed into friendship. China this year suddenly-emerged as the biggest buyer of Pakis-tan's cotton. By March this year China had already bought over 300,000 bales of Pakistan cotton, which amounts to nearly Pakistan cotton, which amounts to nearly 50 per cent of China's import require-

Since he uttered the words in his acceptance speech, the senator has been defending himself. What he had to say to Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, who felt "confused," makes it quite clear that Senator Goldwater does not understand the meaning of extremism and that he has never realized the fundamental principle which is at stake in the argument about it. According to his campaign manager,

The crucial truth is that, when General Eisenhower went to war, he was not a private individual. He was not a member of a private and secret society. He was the commander appointed by the legitimate governments of Great Britain and the United States. He was commanding troops recruited by due process of law. He was engaged in a war which had been authorized by the two governments. The essence of the matter is that to be an extremist is to encourage and condone the taking of the law into unauthorized private hands. It is in truth shocking that the Republican candidate for president is unconscious of this sovereign truth. For the distinction between private violence and public force is the central principle of a civilized society.

The private defence of liberty and the private administration of justice are lynch law. Private killing is murder. Private war is insurrection.

It is not only in the deadly business of private violence that extremism is intolerable. A civilized society does not condone any breach of the peace, such as spitting an ambassador's face, no matter how ardently it is done in the self-induced conviction that it is in the defence of liberty and the pursuit of justice.

It is extremism to say that communism is the enemy of the United States and then to declare that General Eisenhower or the New York Times or the anti-Goldater columnists are working for the

If there ever was a time, it is now, when it is against the public interest to tell men that they may take extreme measures in what they believe the defence of liberty and the pursuit of justice. There is a racial conflict in this country, and there is a strong tendency to private violence on both sides, among the white and among the black.

With the private shootings, the private burnings, the private bomb throwings, the private mobs, is it not the duty of every American to rally to the defence of law and order? But how can there be such a rally if we must endure an election in which the challenging contender is telling the inflammable crowd that extremism may be no sin and that moderation may

Alternative to Fare Boost

In light of the just opposition being expressed by Greater Victoria citizens to the B.C. government's intention to raise bus fares, it would be well to contem-plate a problem that is increasingly plaguing our city planners; what to do about increasing traffic congestion in our major urban centres?

The present attempt at finding solu-tions is to build expensive and often unsightly, through-ways, turnpikes, park-ades, etc., and of course, raise taxes. But within the framework of this present debate over bus fares lies a painless alternative solution that has received but scant attention from politicians and plan-

It is the development of cheaper, more convenient and more rapid forms of public transit: a transit system that would attract people to leave their cars at home more often and instead, to give greater use to more attractive, more convenient and more economical public transit. This means instead of continuously raising (The C.N. Railway has found this works very well, and with a profit too!)

So, it appears the B.C. government finds itself in an untenable position on every front, in trying to increase fares. BOB MUNRO.

The demand by British doctors that some fee be charged to patients, to reduce unnecessary, frivolous calls on their time, illustrates the inevitable results of "free" medical services. With such excessive, unreasonable use of doctors' time, it is quantity of medical care not quality, which becomes the first requirement the doctor must meet. So much has been propa-gated about the virtues of the British plan, it is long overdue for Canadians to learn that the scheme, by its essential structure, has many faults, not the least being overuse and abuse of doctors' services.

That over-use exists, seriously reducing the time and thought the doctor can devote to those in genuine need, should make every thinking Canadian aware that tenced to life im- the implementation of the plan proposed by the Hall Commission, with no respon sibility of the patient for even a small part payment directly, would lead to the identical result here. That the problem is now only starkly publicized is due to the long-suffering, stoical attitude of British doctors; but even they in their show of traditional forbearance, can no longer withstand the enormous strain on their physical and mental resources, nor their frustration at being compelled by the sheer force of numbers and time available to practise substandard medi-

The AMERICAN politics most Canadians have long been vicarious, unofficial Democrats. That is natural enough after their experience with the Republican tariffs of the Fordney-McCumber and Smoot-Hawley era, to which the late Lord

Bennett was the immediate reaction. But our Democratic leanings, intensified by ertain recent events in San Francisco, will be of no help to Presi-

Nothing can better suit the Republican candidate, indeed, than the combined opsition of foreigners, since he has undertaken to run as the independent American incarnate. If Pravda, the Times of London and, closer to home, the press and public of Canada unite in damning Senator Goldwater they will provide him with a major campaign asset. If he can contrive to make himself appear as the only genuine native spokesman opposed by all foreigners that posture should be worth

The Russians, screaming against the senator in state-owned newspapers, can hardly be expected to understand the inwardness of the American people and their politics. Canadians should know better and leave the neighbors to settle their own affairs, especially when Canada bitterly resents any interference, or even any comment, from the United States. Besides, who are we to deplore the Americans' soul-searching confusion when can't even elect a workable Parliament or erect a majority government? And whether we like it or not, we must live with any president whom the Ameri-

Without taking sides in their family quarrel we can surely see that there is much more to the Goldwater phenomenon than a smooth organization, a series of accidents and a dashing candidate. Senator Goldwater is attempting to reorient the polities of his nation. The argument about civil rights, the Republican party's platform of protection and xenophobia, the doctrine of tough unilateral action in foreign affairs and the attack on Big Government are only the superficial symptoms of a deep process and considerable strategy.

Senator Goldwater is a significant fig-and Theodore Roosevelt to divide the right from the left more clearly than they have ever been divided before. In this bold enterprise he challenges not merely the Republican liberals of the great tradition but the central logic of the whole party system, as it exists in all English-speaking countries.

That system differs from democracy in most other places by settling the divisive issues of society not within the leg-islature but within the parties.

At election times they pretend to be coherent groups of single-minded citizens, united by sacred principles, but everyone knows that this is a genial fiction. For in fact any party capable of governing a diverse community like the United States, or even a homogenous community like Britain, must be a coalition of opposites, a rough amalgam of many different views, best compromise available.

Once the purely pragmatic compromise has been reached within the party it is centre until, in critical announced as an eternal creed until it is are seldom far apart.

party, to repeal the heritage of Lincoln

If every neat theory of politics spawned its own party of like-minded and uncom-promising men, if creeds were eternal and unalterable, then we would have legisla-tures composed of splinters in shifting combinations and governments constantly collapsing.

Such was the system invented by the ogical Gallie mind of France, with familiar consequences. Since it failed miliar consequences. Since it failed to work and, in human nature couldn't work, it was replaced by a series of strong men from Napoleon to de Gaulle.

The Anglo-Saxon mind, less logical, more untidy and tolerant, slowly evolved a party system which has no apparent logic but large advantages. It somehow works, not perfectly but reasonably well. That is logic enough for all practical purposes and the alternative is usually chaos or dictatorship.

At election times the illogical logic moves into a second stage. It moves from the extremes of right and left toward the centre until, in critical issues, the parties cilable position, then every change of government would be a revolution, peaceful or, more likely, violent. The avoidance of colution in favor of gradual, clumsy but orderly evolution is the one supreme secret of the party system as devised in Britain and imitated in America.

Senator Goldwater must understand the system but he is dissatisfied with its con-temporary results. He believes that a large body of conservative opinion has failed to find adequate expression and must be mobilized.

As he has admitted to a German publication, with charming indiscretion, does not expect to win the present campaign but he hopes to lay the foundation of a new conservative party for election later on. He offers himself in the world series of the big league as a sacrifice hit-ter, with the outside chance of a home run if the Democratic pitcher throws him an easy ball.

President Johnson doesn't seem to be that sort of pitcher. Unless the public opinion polls are wildly in error the Goldwater strategy will not succeed at all this year and is unlikely to succeed later on in the basic fashion planned by the chief strategist. Two obstacles stand in its way,

First, the historic movement of American society, and all human society, is marked by frequent detours and retreats but its general direction is away from the extreme conservatism represented by Senator Goldwater. Even if he were elected he could not begin to do what he proposes. The built-in checks and balances of the constitution would stop him. Second, a party based on any inflexible policy can never hope to encompass the several distinct and divided communities that form the United States. Still, without publicly taking sides in the election, a foreigner who knows that great country can guess that the senator the catalyst of a profound chemistry. He will be supported by millions of voters who disagree with most of his specific policies but are dissatisfied with their present society. Far short of rearranging the party system on black and white lines of right and left, he should be able to provide a safety valve for widespread discontent, to offer useful critcism of an imperfect government, to attract many conservative Democrats into his party and force many Republicans to support a emocratic president.

For all these reasons the election is Democratic more important and probably less dangerous, than it looks, well to call people's attention to several facts about sunbathing. One is that it is highly deabout sunbatting. One is that it is inginy desirable that the sunbather start with a small dose of sunning, and gradually run up the dose.

When I was a boy in Hawaii, I used to see people who, on coming from a North American city, lay out on Waikiki Beach. Not knowing the danger, they lay in the sun most of the first day, and that night some were very ill with a temperature of 102 or 103 degrees. For two or three Alvarez days they were utterly miserable with a badly burned skin.

Actually, as the skin specialists keep telllng us, the present-day love of sunbathing is really foolish. I know of no evidence that tanning one's skin improves one's health, but I know that skin specialists are much against this modern craze. They keep telling us that sunbathing is hard on the skin; it ages it, wrinkles it and injures it; and it causes the skin to become more susceptible to cancer. Naturaly, this danger of cancer formation is greater in the person past middle-age than in the youngster.

Every physician knows that a high percentage of people, as they grow past 50 or 60, begin to get small skin cancers on their face or hands, and these have to be burned off as soon as they appear. What I must emphasize is that very rarely do these skin cancers ap-pear on the parts of the body that are covered clothes-unless the person is addicted to sunbathing. Anyone who wants to see how much harm the sun can do to the skin need only look at the red neck of a Southern farmer, with its deep creases.

Often I have marvelled at the almost perfect and youthful appearance of the skin of the body of an elderly woman-that part that was always protected by clothes. The skin of her face may have become badly wrinkled and old-looking-due to exposure to the sun. But I am sure that I am wasting my time telling people how strongly skin specialists object to sunbathing, because today most people have in their mind a delightful picture of a handsome man who is just back from one of the Southern beaches, burned brown as a berry. So long as most people are frantic to get their skin burned until it is almost black, no one will listen to the warnings of

Many people write to ask me if there is anything they can do for the bags under their eyes. Sometimes, in the cases of people in certain countries in Europe, the skin over these bags is heavily pigmented.

Many of these people worry about their appearance because when the lower lids are big these give an impression either that the person has been drinking, or he has kidney disease, or he is dissipated.

I have seen cases in which the tendency to baggy lower lids seemed to run in a family. In many cases the trouble comes and goes; some days the bags will be prominent, and other days they will disappear.

I was just talking to my old friend, Dr. Mc-Carthy DeMere, of Memphis, an able plastic surgeon. He tells me that for some unknown reason more and more men are now getting these bags in their lower eyelids. He said that often it is due to a sort of rupture in which a globule of fat which normally lies under the eyeball gets pushed forward where it doesn't belong. He says a physician can easily tell when this condition is present by pressing on the eyeball and seeing that the lower lid bulges forward.

In a few minutes, an expert can cut in and sew the opening closed, so that the little rupture can no longer take place, and the fat can no longer bulge out. Then the patient is very happy, because he no longer looks dissipated.

Veneer Plant Picketers From Alberta

VANCOUVER (CP) - Jack Moore, regional president of the International Woodworkers of America (CLC) has identified "mystery" pickets who appeared at a New Westminster veneer plant as IWA members on strike from the Northern Canadian Forest Products plant at Grande Prairie, Alta.

The pickets appeared Wednes day morning and stayed two hours at the Canadian Forest Products Limited Pacific veneer plant. Northern Canadian Forest Products is a subsidiary of Canadian Forest Products.

The pickets carried placards saying "scab" labor was being ed at the Grande Prairie plant where some 50 men have been on strike 11 months in a wage dispute. Some of the ve-neer plant's shift had already entered the plant before the pickets arrived, but others who arrived later did not cross the picket

Mr. Moore said in a stateme the apparent reason for the picket line "is that while the union was attempting to reach a settlement of strike issues, the company employed a second shift of strikebreakers."

Probe Urges Hospital Wage Arbitration

TORONTO (CP) Legislation tion in labor disputes involving hospitals, when patient care is seriously threatened, is recommended in a royal commission report released Wednesday by-Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree Compulsory arbitration should also apply when either party has been convicted of bargain-ing in bad faith, the report suggests. Under either of these circumstances, strikes or lockouts should be prohibited.

The commission, headed by Judge Colin E. Bennett of Owen Sound, was appointed last Oc tober during a dispute between Trenton Memorial Hospital and the Building Service Employees International Union (CLC).

It was asked to report on the feasibility and desirability of applying compulsory arbitration the settlement of hospital disputes.

The commission does not rec ommend compulsory arbitration in all bospital labor disputes, but urges that additional steps be taken to help solve disputes before they reach strike or lockout stage.

It also suggests that the labor minister should consider such disputes as being in a special category with the object of strengthening present concilia-tion stages under the Labor Relations Act.

An unbalanced schedule-the Invaders were on the road for as long as 28 days at a stretch-and high travelling costs knocked the profit-loss statement for a loop. The tads in Denver are weaned on baseball, football and basketball. Some of them wouldn't know a "blue line" from a row of policemen.

Q: What kind of a feam will Toronto put in here?

A: "A good one"—smiling—"I hope. Basically it will be the Denver team with a few changes. We own all the Denver players. Shevtz, Martin Howe, the Huculs, Migay, Jarrett, Jankowski, Sleaver-Long John is a Guyle Fielder with muscles; he's six-one, 195 pounds and a worker, a fine boy, too-Witiuk, Marcetta, Millar . . . " Last year the Invaders were the Beatles of the WHL, loud and successful. They were far above the rest of the teams, artistically as well as geographically.

But Millar? Isn't he the impulsive citizen who in a fit of pique used his bludgeon on Dave Duke's dandruff at Vancouver one night last winter?

"The same," said Imlach, meeting the question head-on.

"Personality kid. I had him as a junior in Manitoba. He's been with a lot of clubs. Millar will be the best goalkeeper in the Western League . . . if he wants to be Hal Laycoe, the presiding steward at Portland, says, "Last year Millar WAS the best in our league. Athletes have a description for Millar's kind.

Rang-a-tang.

As long as Millar plays well," Imlach said, "I'll put up with him. I can take — — from one player who delivers. But if I use a nice guy who loses games I have to - from a LOT of people.

The Punch Hit Wings Where It Hurts

Q: The schedule calls for Victoria to play 15 home games Tuesdays, 20 on Saturdays. Will the NHL telecasts on Saturday nights hurt your gates?

A: "TV may help or it may hurt. If the NHL game is fast, lots of action, it may stimulate people to come and see us. There's lots of time for them to get to the rink after the "Weekend games make the money. You can't play Sunday and I understand there is heavy Friday night shopping. You try to eliminate the worst and get the best."

Q: You won the Stanley Cup with Johnny Bower in goal and you have Don Simmons backing him up. Yet you took Terry Sawchuck from Detroit in the draft. How some?

A: "In the draft you try to help yourself and to weaken the others. We accomplished both. "In the last two finals Sawchuk was the big man-the main reason Detroit was there. He won the Vezina three times, holds the record for shutouts.

"They say he's susceptible to injuries. So what? If he hurt, I've got the best goalkeeper in the country to step in. "Getting Sawchuk proves that everything happens for the best. If we had finished first instead of third we never would have got him."

With Beliveau Stanley Cup a Lark

Senor Laycoe, who attended the NHL draft session for Portland, believes that Imlach had his eye on Gump Worsley. "Detroit protected Sawchuk at first," Laycoe says. "Then they drafted George Gardiner from Minneapolis and removed Sawchuk. Punch called time out. You could tell he was thinking . . . 'Worsley or Sawchuk?' When the meeting resumed he said, 'Sawchuk.' He was smiling. You could have sliced the silence in the room.

'To think," Laycoe said, "a newspaperman once told me nothing ever happens at draft meetings.

Montreal didn't protect Worsley, or Dickie Moore who you picked up. There was talk last year that they might leave Jean Beliveau open for grabs. Since Beliveau talked of retiring would you have grabbed him?

"I've known Jean for a long time. Had him in Quebec. I'd love to have him. If I could get him they could leave the Cup locked up in Toronto for three years.'

Since Imlach assumed direction of the Leafs in 1958-59, they have never been out of the playoffs. They have won Stanley Cup the last three years. Saturday: a close-up of Imlach, the shrewdest and most successful coach in hockey.

of the most interesting results I have ever seen as the result of that type of false-card, Spotty took the first diamond trick, led a trump to dummy's queen and a second trump back to his ace. His next play was the ten of hearts covered with dummy's

This gave East the distinct impression that West held the jack of hearts and East decided to hold back his ace. Now Spotty led the six of hearts from dummy, East ducked again and Spotty cashed his jack. His next play was a trump back to dummy's nine to be followed by the lead of the king of hearts. East played his ace, but he was far too late.

Then he discarded the three of diamonds on the nine of hearts and wound up losing only one trick. It didn't mean too much since the game was rubber bridge, but it centainly shows how you can make three tricks in a suit to your opponents' none even though you miss the ace.

Spotty ruffed and led another trump to dummy's jack.

Red Cross Stalwart Still Pushing at 93

By MARGE GILROY

Mrs. Beatrice Dawson-Thomas is pushing 94 and still pushing a carpenter's plane.

In fact she has been pushing all her life, and still shows no sign of stopping. It began in England in 1910 when she joined the voluntary aid department (VAD) of the Red Cross. Although not a trained nurse, she has been nursing since she was 15.

After she completed her education in Switzerland and France, she took off for Africa with her sick mother. When she returned to England she had passed the 22 age limit then set for student nurses.

IN FIRST WAR

Her training was on the practical side, until she joined up as a VAD and started studying the first aid and home nursing she was to practice throughout the war.

From 1911 until war broke out Mrs. Dawson-Thomas was in charge of a group of VAD's who practiced every fortnight in a Somerset stable and saddle room. Then, when war was declared she took over Lloyd's Bank in Mineshead, Somerset, and before long was oper-ating a 150-bed hospital. She was the commandant as her own detachment called her, or the matron-in-charge, a title preferred by the military. "As the commandant I had to wear white kid gloves on duty, and at six shillings a pair that was expensive. I used to wear out a pair a month," said the retired ma-

For nearly five years she ran the hospital staffed with masseurs and 64 VAD's. Not a shilling was she and the only holiday was when she broke out with chicken

Meanwhile scientists appeared satisfied that the 15,000,000 units of penicillin and the two and half grains of vitamin B shot into the whale Wednesday will encourage the healing of the harpoon wound and stimulate the whale's appetite.

The injection was given with a 12-foot syringe tipped with a four-inch needle, with the aid of a dart rifle.

So far the whale has eaten a few small fish but officials commented, "this is like a man nibbling on a peanut.'

Still scientists are not worried as a killer whale will often eat only once a week.

After it was made known that Charles White, operator of the Gardens, had no hope of purchasing the captive whale, two other groups said they were considering another capture with the use of tranquilizers.

But Mr. White is not ready to give up yet. Today he offered to build an undersea gardens in Vancouver if Dr. Newman would reconsider selling the whale.

And while all this is taking place, two petitions to have the whale released remained unsigned this morning in two Victoria establishments.

"Slow" gin is a London Dry Gin-not a Sloe Gin. Most unlike Sloe Gin-which is flavoured with sloes instead of juniper berries-our "slow" gin is very, very dry.

Its listed name is Burnett's Sterling. We call it "slow" because we make it slowly.

Most gins on the market are massproduced. They run from modern, mammoth stills in oceans. But our Sterling is distilled in small, unhurried batches. What limits the amount-and sets the paceis our little old copper Pot Stills. The one you see on the right is more than 100 years old. We brought it from England in the 1920s-when we imported Burnett's complete distillery.

By today's standards, our old Pot Stills are miniatures-and slowpokes. But the men who mind them know them as a good cook knows her seasoned pots and pans. Watching, sipping, tasting they let Sterling take its time. They believe that nothing excellent was ever turned out in a hurry.

We'd save money, of course, by switching to mass-producing equipment. But our Sterling Gin would cease to be a "slow" gin.

And it wouldn't taste the same

22 YEARS AT DUNCAN Red Cross Stalwart Still Pushing at 93

By MARGE GILROY

Mrs. Beatrice Dawson-Thomas is pushing 94 and still ushing a carpenter's plane. In fact she has been pushing all her life, and still shows no sign of stopping.

It began in England in 1910 when she joined the voluntary aid department (VAD) of the Red Cross. Although not a trained nurse, she has been nursing since she was 15.
After she completed her eduation in Switzerland and France, she took off for Africa with her sick mother. When she returned to England she had passed the 22 age limit then set for student nurses.

IN FIRST WAR

Her training was on the practical side, until she joined up as a VAD and started studying the first ald and home nursing she was to practice throughout the war.

From 1911 until war broke out Mrs. Dawson-Thomas was in charge of a group of VAD's who practiced every fortnight in a Somerset stable and saddle room.

Then, when war was declared she took over Lloyd's Bank in Mineshead, Somerset, and before long was operating a 150-bed hospital. She was the commandant as OTTAWA — British Co-lumbia got the beginnings of a new bank Wednesday night-but not Premier W. A. C. Bennett's.

There were strong indica-tions that his Bank of B.C. will be turned down by the senate banking committee as it approved incorporation of two rivals.

Laurentide Bank got approval for a $30 million bank which promotor Peter Paul Saunders of Vancouver said could be open this fall after expected passage by the full Senate and the Commons.

(See Story Page 15)

The Bank of Western Can ada, a $10 million venture for Winnipeg, was also approved.

Premier Bennett and his delegation had a rough ride in a two-hour session before the committee Wednesday aft ernoon.

Senators seemed agreed that B.C. had presented an over whelming case for a bank.

But three powerful spokes men appeared dead against the proposed government participation in it.

The acid test will come next Wednesday when the committee will renew its deliberations on the Bank of B.C.

PULLED STOPS

Premier Bennett pulled out all the stops in admitting he was "pleading" for his bank. chief inquisitors were Senators David Croll, Wallace McCutcheon and Thomas Crerar,

They argued: 1, If the bank has as great a public support as the premier claimed, why should the government have to invest in it? 2. · They feared setting precedent which would allow other provinces to crode federal of Canada's banking system

GUNDY CAUGHT WITH FOOT OFF BASE

OTTAWA-Premier Bennett bore the brunt of the attack on the Bank of B.C. in the Senate committee Wednesday -but his cohort Einar M. Gunderson didn't go unnoticed.

Mr. Bennett told the banking committee the directors of the B.C. bank would make all the decisions-not the government.

Piped up Mr. Gunderson "The board of directors is not going to pay too much atten-tion to what the politicians say."

"How do you think you got here?" quipped Sen. David Croll.

Bennett Said Ready To 'Go It Alone

VANCOUVER (CP) - The Sun, in a front-page story from Ottawa, quotes Premier Bennett as saying the British Columbia government will start a large and powerful bank with or without a federal charter.

The story says Mr. Bennett said he would regret having to start the bank without Parliament's approval, but that he would take the step if necessary. A bank started under such circumstances would split the country economically and socially. "We have tried to come in the front door. If we don't get it this way, we'll have to go around to the back," Mr. Bennett is quoted.

The Sun says the premier made it clear he intends to go ahead with an unchartered provincial bank if the Senate banking committee recom-mends against a federal charter for it.

The story says the premier would not give details of his plans but that he said an unchartered provincial bank in B.C. would be along the lines of the treasury branch system used in TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI)-Three hungry little Papago Indian boys broke into a cage of masked bobwhite quail and ate the major part of a $15,000 research project, it was reported today.

A spokesman for the Arizona - Sonora Desert Museum said the youngsters, aged 10 and under, took between 25 and 30 of the quail from research pens and cooked them over an open fire for a feast. They left behind nine birds, possibly too old to breed.

TO STUDY REPORTS

The minister will study re ports from the highways de partment and two other govern-ment departments before deciding whether to put a recommendation before the provincial cabinet.

Present indication is that the bridge could be built as a joint effort of several government departments or, more likely, the government might provide a guarantee of bonds sold by a group of Nanaimo citizens to provide bridge funds. Meanwhile, Chamber of Commerce president Richard Bond said: "We must see if there is some alternative way of getting the job done. One suggestion is a causeway to the island, opening at certain tides to let shipping through. MAFFEO WOULD QUIT

Mayor Pete Maffeo indicated he is still willing to resign as mayor to head the island committee, if necessary.

He challenged the government to underwrite the cost and said he would like to see the job finished in 1967.

Present visitors to the island have to take a ferry across. Many tourists are reluctant to go camping there because they cannot take their cars across.

The city bought the island from the CPR in 1955 for $150, 000 and handed it over to the government in 1961 for development as a park.
